West U Recycling and Solid Waste Reduction Board to Offer Waste Reduction Courses

WEST UNIVERSITY PLACE, TX – The Recycling and Solid Waste Reduction Board of West University Place is promoting a series of classes for area residents to fine-tune their recycling and waste reduction skills.

Three engaging classes will be offered from 10 a.m. to noon at the West University Place Recreation Center, each focusing on a unique topic designed to educate participants on the fundamentals of recycling, recycling opportunities beyond curbside collection, waste reduction, and the principles of composting. The first two classes will take place on Saturday, February 21, and Saturday, February 28, with the final class scheduled for Saturday, March 21.

Registration is now open at a cost of $5 per class for West U residents and $20 per class for non-residents. You may enroll in one, two, or all three classes, either in person at the West University Place Recreation Center or online at www.westutx.gov/reg.

These courses will not only provide you with a multitude of resources when recycling in the Houston area, but will also prepare you to engage with others, answer questions, and inspire others to reduce, reuse, and recycle.
